SENTENCE DAY IN COURT.

Judge Montgomery.

George Hines, a young colored boy, was up before Judge Montgomery for sentence in the Oriminal Court to-day on the charge of housebreaking in entering the residence of Joseph Joyce. He was a shining example of Reform School culture, as he had been out of that in School culture, as he had been out of that institution for less than a year, discharged as having been completely reformed. The greatest reluctance is manifested at that lostitution in cases where colored boys are concerned, and Hines's premature discharge may be the result of that sentiment. The boy gave his age as fifteen years, and sentence was postponed until fit could be determined whether he is telling the truth. If he is under sixteen he will be sent back to the Reform School.

Hartless Ford, colored, was arraigned and Hartless Ford, colored, was arraigned and pleaded not guilty, under an indictment which charged him, in separate counts, with housebreaking (residence of Basil Mayhew), with intent to steal and with intent to assault Emma Mayhew, housebreaking residence of Hattic Williams, with intent to steal and to assault Carrie Hall and Hattie Hall. Ford was discovered in the rooms of these people, going about placing his hands upon the occupants.

Grace Smallwood, colored, pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder. She is accused of having killed a male child of her's on September 2 by strangling it with a cord immediately after its birth.

John Cady, alias William and John Marr, entered the same plea to the charge of entering

Edward Huff, colored, charged with house-breaking in entering a tool house belonging to the Government, was sentenced to six months in the penitentiary at Albany.

John F. Thomas, convicted under the statute which covers fraudulent pension claims, was sentenced by Judge Montgomery to one year in the penitentiary. He had made a false affidavit in support of the fraudulent claim of George Bumbrey, who is now in the penitentiary for that offense.

William Clayton, a very black young man, whose record for plety and pencefulness was attested for by the pastor of his church, was sentenced to three months in jail, under a conviction of assault on Zachariah Winfield on the fourth of last August with a penkuiffe.

Edward L. Berry, colored, convicted of assault to rape on Sarah Hutton, was sent to the Albany penitentiary for two years.

Harry Moran, a young white man, aged twenty-two years, pleaded guilty in the Criminal Court this morning to the charge of house-breaking. He was charged with breaking into Christ Church, in Georgetown, with intent to steal on July 23. He stated that he had come to this city seeking employment. He had never been arrested before. He stated to the Court that there were three charges against him for entering churches; that he was unier the influence of liquor and that it to the Court that there were three charges against him for entering churches; that he was under the influence of liquor and that it was the want of liquor that led him to commit the offense. He was sentenced to eighteen mouths in the Albany Penitentiary.

William Barnes, a young colored boy, was sent to the Reform School for housebreaking, in entering the house of John Miller.

Joseoh Harbour, charged with the second offense of receiving stolen property, pleaded not guilty. On April 14, 1883, he was sentenced to pay $200 fine and six months imprisonment in iath.

John Graham, a colored boy, charged with obtaining $2 from Kate Young, under the pre-tense that her husband, John Young, then in jail, wanted the money to pay a lawyer, en-tered a plea of not guilty.

THE DISTRICT GOVERNMENT.

The annual report of the National Association for the Relief of Colored Women and Children has been submitted to the District Commissioners. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company states that it has put down a plank crossing over their tracks at Boundary street and that safety gates have been ordered.

Gilbert Thompson has profested against the nt to the workhouse in the morning. John Fiftcenth street. He also made some serious insinuations against the methods of assessing property, especially in this case. He said:
"I claim that the assessment of the improvements should be declared void as here requested from the fact that the original record in the file book is questionable in this, that it shows that the first entry of $2,500 each has been erased and $4,000 each written in pencil with no note by the same, stating or indicat-ing by whom it was done, why it was done, or when it was done.

"It appears to me that your plea that appeal was not made in the prescribed time by the complainants is without force, else what assurance is there to any one, even after satisfying themselves with the knowledge or amount of their assessment that the same may not be changed during the last hour or moment of the time allowed for appeals

ORTH STEIN'S CAREER.

A Number of Criminals Arraigned Before | Criminal Doings of the Furger Was Recently Appeared at Baltimore.

Orth Stein, who, under the name of Walter A. McNulty, lately victimized a number of unsuspecting Baltimoreans, is one of the cleverest regues known to police annals. He is twenty seven years old and comes of a prominent Indiana family. He was the namesake and neplew of the late Godlove S. Orth, a distinguished member of Congress, and afterward Minister to Venezuela, and his father, who died of a broken heart, caused by his son's crimes, was a wealthy citizen of Lafayette.

Young Stein was unusually bright and precocious from his childhood, and, receiving a college education, developed talent as a writer. While yet in his youth he wrote meritorious verse for leading periodicals and was considered a veritable genius. He grew wayward, however, and, leaving home, he drifted to Kansas City, where he took service with the Times. There he made a brilliant reputation as a reporter, but his newspaper career was interrupted by murder. He quarreled with a theatrical manager over a vaudeville actress and shot him in the back, killing him. He was convicted of voluntary manslaughter and sentenced to twenty-one years imprisonment, but on second trial, secured through the influence of powerful friends and by the expenditure of thousands in his behalf, he was acquitted. Then he returned home and started a weekly paper, a literary gem in its way, but the life was too prosy, and after de-frauding his mother out of the remnant of her fortune, he went out into the world again. He turned up at St. Louis during the Missouri Pacific strike a few years ago, and while working for the Globe-Democrat as reporter, forged General Manager Hoxei's name to a large check. He fled to San Francisco, where he pro-cured money on a bogus draft on the New York Herald. Next he figured as principal in a murderous affray at El Paso, Texas, for which he was jailed for a few months. He subsequently appeared in the roll of forger at Pittsburg and was fresh from jail when he made his advent at Balti-more. It is due to his influential relations that he has not heretofore landed in the penitentiary. His versatility insures him newspaper employment wher-ever he goes, but his penchant for women and wine operates against his steady devotion to honest pursuits.

A Strange Trick to Play.

Once, in Cairo, at the opera house (which his highness the Khedive kindly placed at my disposal) an event occurred which, if luck had not been with me, might have out short my career. A well-known English officer had arranged to think out a plan of attack, on the basis of the experiment I had performed with Gen. Gourko, in Warsaw. We storted, and I took him over the route that he had in his mind, which finally led to the upper boxes. There we paused, but I felt that it was my subject's in-tention for me to drop from the side of the box as if in the act of storming a redoubt.

Being blindfolded, I had no idea of the distance I had to drop; but, acting upon the impression conveyed to me by my companion, I took the leap. A confused murmur smote my ears as I made the spring and it seemed an age before I reached the ground, but when I did reach it I was foreibly reminded of the fact. I lay on the floor for a few moments parlay on the floor for a few moments parlay on the floor for a few moments par-tially stunned, with a painful feeling in the region of my back, which had struck one of the folding seats in my fall. Nothing, however, was broken, but for weeks after I felt exceedingly sore and uncomfortable. It is only fair to the officer to say that he did not for a mo-ment believe I would take the leap, which he had thought of, to use his own words, simply "as a puzzler," and that he at once came to my assistance when I once came to my assistance when I

One heavy dragoon and mighty swell had invited a brother officer to dine with him at his club. They sat tion. swell down to a dinner of sixteen courses and for the first half hour neither spoke. Then the host discovered a pretty little nearess tripping across the street under the club window,

"Ha," said he, "There goes Miss Jigger-what's her doord name?"

The other pondered deeply, and in the course of the following half hour the dinner progressed steadily. Then the guest, struggling under a boom of recollection said: recollection, said: "Judkins."

An hour passed and not a word was uttered. Finally, after the coffee was uttered. Finally, after the coffee was finished, a light broke upon the face of the host and he said:

"Demmit, her doocid name was Judkins, after all."

APPETITE OF GIRLS.

Domestics Who Frighten Their Employ-Philadelphia Times.

"Talk about the appetite of girls," said a portly matron at a domestic aid agency, with a smile. "Whatever may be the matter with that of our nativeborn girls there is certainly no fault to be found with the digestion of the foreign-born help hiring out in private families. Why, it's often been a wonder to me what ravenous appetites a good many illes. Why, it's often been a wonder to me what ravenous appetites a good many of these girls develop. Now, there was a seventeen-year-old English girl, a small but plump creature, who went to work in a family of two on Center street, near Lincoln Park. She was a good girl quick, neat and conscientious, but after a fortnight the lady came to me and told me she couldn't keep Nellie any longer; she'd ruin them; she ate too much. "Would you believe it, sir, that small girl ate tarce quants of sirioin beefsteak at one breakfast. A couple of pounds of rare roast beef, together with bread, potatoes and ple enough to feed a starving family for a week was a regular thing with her. The first two or three days it amused that young married couple to whom she had hired out. They used to sit and watch her operations at the table with bulging eyes. They thought she had been starving and had to fill out again. But no—it was the same every day. They had to give it up. That girl was actually bankrupting them.

"The grocer's and butcher's bills at the end of the week were as high as they would have been for a bearding house. Then there was another girl, a German. She was an old maid of thirty-five or thereabouts. She was thin as a rail and so pale she looked as if she had consumption. But the way she punished the catables! My sakes! And with that she never gained any flesh. She was a good servant, efficient, faithful and exceedingly methodical. But she came to me every week for a new place. Nobody could afford to keep her—that's the fact.
